Speeches will be made in which the entire history of the subway project from its inception will be told.

The rush for invitations to ride to-day

The rush for invitations to ride to-day increased yesterday. The demand upon the Interborough officials was tremendous. The pass seekers bombarded the offices of General Manager Hedley, Vice-President Bryan, President Belmont, John B. McDonald and the Rapid Transit Commission. Even the Mayor's office did not begiven out there. All the same politicians and officeholders of every degree werimportuned to use their influence to get the much sought for invitations.

The smallness of the Aldermen's chamber made it precessive for the Rapid Transit Reporters who applied for tickets were told that all the invitations had been sent out and that police passes, such as are used to pass fire lines, would not be bonored. ### TO CLEAR UP CITY HALL PARK. All Permits for News and Shoeblacking Stands Provisionally Cancelled.

Fars Commissioner Pallas has issued an order that all permits for stand privileges in City Hall Park shall be at once revoked. He says that during the later months of his predecessor's term these permits were issued with excessive lberality and the stands became a blemish and a nuisance in the park. Some of them were unnecessarily large and offensive in design and color. They served no public need, but he said were leased by a company to the privilege holders for the sale of periodicals on commission. Many storekeepers and taxpayers complained of them. Mr. Pallas says he took no notice of the abuse while the subway work was in progress. The park was in hopeless disarray and travel through it was so impeded that the stands caused little additional inconvenience. The park having now been virually cleared, he thinks the time has come for a sweeping reform in the matter of stands and privileges gener-ally. He said yesterday, in a statement given out for publication:

The holders of these privileges will be allowed to conduct their business without stands or fixtures until such time as experience develops the character and course of the traffic which the subway will bring to City Hall Park, and an endeavor will then be made to systematize the granting of these privileges in such way as to promote the public convenience and prevent obstruction of traffic.

SCHWARZKOPF TALKS BACK. Says He Has Begun Action Against Judge

Fursman for $20,000 for Slander. TROY, Oct. 26 .- According to the story of John Schwarzkopf, the relations of him and his partners, former Justice E. L. Fursman and John T. Little, were peculiar, indeed. He charges that his arrest on contempt proceedings was in reality a firm arrest, and he was the sufferer because he was the only member of the firm that could be found.

In a long typewritten statement which he has placed in the hands of his attorney, Thomas F. Phelan, he makes charges against his two partners. He denies that owes a cent to either Fursman or Little. and says that they are in debt to him. He says he has brought a suit against his partners for a dissolution of the firm and for an accounting, which will show that he is a creditor instead of a debtor. He further declares that he has begun an action against Mr. Fursman for slander, fixing his damages at $20,000. The papers of this suit, he said to-night, would be served at once. His arrest, he said, was a counter-move to offset this slander suit and a retaliatory measure. His attorney is confident of getting him out on bail. Schwarzkopf has money and is getting his meals from a restaurant. His brother is on the way to this city. an action against Mr. Fursman for slander,

O'BRIEN'S WATCHDOG CAT.

Angora Saved His Overcoat From an Unseasonable Departure.

"That cat is the best watchdog in the city," said Matthew O'Brien last night, in telling the police of the West Forty-seventh street station how his big angora had saved his home from being robbed.

O'Frien and his wife live on the second floor, rear, at 746 Ninth avenue. They have no children and the cat is a great pet. It makes a great fuss whenever a stranger comes into the place. Yesterday afternoon, when O'Brien was at work and his wife was when O'Brien was at work and his wife was shopping, the cat scratched violently on the door leading to Mrs. Mary Mitchell's apartments, across the hall. Mrs. Mitchell opened the door in time to see a strange man walk out of the O'Brien rooms with an overcoat over his arm.

Mrs. Mitchell recognized the coat as belonging to O'Brien and told the stranger so. He admitted it, but explained that Mr. O'Brien was his boss and had sent him for the coat. Mrs. Mitchell was suspicious,

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 .- The inquiry into the right of the fifteen geisha girls at the St. Louis fair to remain in the United States and make a theatrical tour of the country. which has been begun by the Bureau of Immigration, has been suspended pending a decision on a point made by their counsel that the present proceeding is a judicial process and that they have a right to cross-examine the little Japs.

Inspector Dunn, who is conducting the investigation, replied that the hearing was in the nature of an investigation such as in the nature of an investigation such as is held at ports of entry on the arrival of an emigrant whose right to enter this country is questioned and the right of cross-examination was not possible.

PLEA FOR HULL'S FISHERMEN.

SIR JAMES KITSON CHEERED AT IRON MEN'S BANQUET.

Shall the Nations Which Police the Seas Permit Irresponsible Persons to Dim the Glory of the Naval Profession: "America" and "God Save the King."

Sir James Kitson, who was the first speaker at the banquet given in the Waldorf-Astoria last evening by the Iron and Steel Institute to the New York reception committees, referred in terms of indignant earnestness to the recent attack on the English fishing fleet from Hull by the Russian squadron. The reference greatly moved the assemblage, nine-tenths of whom ere Englishmen or Scotchmen. "We are now here," said Sir James, "in a moment of great anxiety. Shall it be that the nations that police the seas, the two nations that have made the name of naval seaman synonymous with gentleman, shall sit by and see irresponsible, ignorant persons in command of vessels they cannot manage-shall we see these persons interfere with and shoot down humble fishermen in the pursuit of their arduous calling?

There was an uproar of cries of "No. No!" from all over the room, and plain evidence in the faces of all present that Sir James's reference had aroused strong

TOO MUCH TOBACCO SMOKE.

Whole Cellar Full of It Puts Firemen Out of Business.

A small fire in a cellar under the five story double brick tenement at 212 Forsyth street made tough work for the firemen last night. Part of the cellar is used as a storehouse by Edward London, a tobacconist who has a shop across the street. The flames got into six or eight bales of leaf tobacco and produced a smoke that overcame the men as fast as they got into it.

The members of Engine companies 17 and 33 were worst hit. Joe Engel and John Conners of the former and George Brown of the latter were seriously affected. The fire was finally put out with small damage.

HARRISON IN STEUBEN COUNTY. A Thousand Citizens Listen to His Speech in Bath-Fireworks and Enthusiasm.

BATH. N. Y., Oct. 26 .- A thousand citizens of Steuben county heard the arguments of Francis Burton Harrison, Citizens candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, at the Casino here to-night. Former State Chairman Frank Campbell assured Mr. Harrison long ago that he would be mighty glad to see him. The promise was made good. The long main street, with its low row of buildings on each side of it, became an elongated pile of fire soon after dark. The sky was reddened with the glare and smoke rolled up and down in clouds over the heads of the marching shouters for Parker and ris and Herrick and Harrison, and their loud sounding band.

The Republican adherents of the Citizens ticket, more cautious than their brethren in Orleans county, who organized Roosevelt and Herrick clubs, did their cheering from the sidewalk, but the verist stranger in town could not mistake their feelings to-ard the Groceryman.

Mr. Harrison spoke at some length, driving home his convictions as to national and State issues with all his customary fire and earnestness. He touched on the Governor-Chairman's latest contribution to the cheerfulness of the up-State campaign, the sending of letters to physicians and surgeons containing the somewhat paign, the sending of letters to physicians and surgeons containing the somewhat surprising assertion that the salubrity of the air in the county districts and the excellent drainage furnished by the streams and rills are all the direct results of the work of the State sanitary commission at Albany. The incident was held up as typical of the nerve of the Administration in claiming credit for every good thing. in claiming credit for every good thing in the State which they have not been able for every good thing to dispose of for revenue.

Thomas Carmody of Penn Yan and John
S. Crosby of New York also spoke.

AGAINST BUTCHERS UNION. Man Who Said He Was Deprived of Getting Living Reinstated by Court.

Supreme Court Justice Garretson handed down a decision yesterday in Brooklyn against Max Ferle, president, and Local Inion No. 211 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, ordering the reinstatement of George Cramer. It was alleged that Cramer had uttered a slander against the president of the union, and for this he was fined $50 by the union on Oct. 21, 1903. He was notified that he must pay the fine and also make a public apology at a meeting of the He refused to do so and was ex-

He carried the matter to the international union, which declared that the local union had jurisdiction in the case. Cramer was then told that he had sixty days in which to pay the fine and apologize. He failed to do so, and, after he was expelled, he found that the union had notified the butchers that in case they employed Cramer they would be boycotted by the union Cramer was unable to get a job and averred that under the Constitution of this State and also under the Constitution of the United States he was unlawfully deprived of earning a living for himself and family. After the case had been sub-mitted, Justice Garretson read the by-laws of the union, which contained a provision that the union could expel a mem-ber after charges had been made in writing and regularly signed and a fair trial given

Justice Garretson told the defendants that the records of the case did not show that the charges had been signed and that there had been nothing brought before him to show that the man had been legally expelled. He gave judgment for the plaintiff. There are three other cases of a similar character which were held in abeyance awaiting decision in Cramer's case.

The charges were referred to the grievance committee.

Mr. Schaettler did not seem worried about this action when seen by a Sun reporter. He said:

Presently Admiral Rojestvensky and the captains of the warships landed in uniform to pay a formal visit to the Military Governor, the port commandant and the French Consul. They were received by a guard of honor and a military band. Presumably the commandant, during his interview with the Russians, prevailed over Admiral Rojestvensky's objections. for after the latter returned to his flagship he gave his word of honor to the commandant's representative that he would not coal in Spanish waters, but at the same time he urged that the Spanish Government be again asked to allow each Russian vessel to ship 400 tons of coal to enable them to reach Tangier.

RISKING CHANCE OF WAR. Quarrel of Russian Bureaus Adds to Gravity of the Situation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.- In spite of the infavorable turn of the news from St. Petersburg and London this afternoon, announcing that Lord Lansdowne is dis satisfied with the Russian reply to British demands in the North Sea affair, and that he Russians are circulating the report that the British fishing fleet was not fired upon at all, but that only a collision had occurred, the State Department still entertains the hope that a settlement of differences will be reached within a day or two.

It is conceded that if Russia should set up the claim that there was no shooting, and that the casualty was the result merely of a collision, the temper of the British Government might be aroused to a dangerous pitch. The unanimous testimony of the fishermen was to the effect that the Russian vessels fired upon them for about twenty minutes. Fragments of shells were found on the trawlers and holes in the hulls of one or two of the boats demonstrated conclusively the effect of solid shot.

To deny that any shots were fired would, in the opinion of the Department officials, give rise to the suspicion in England that the attack, heretofore regarded as a stupid blunder, was a wilful and premeditated The British Government, it is thought here, will not long trifle with any evasive or palpably false statement of the cause of the disaster to the fishermen.

It is now expected that the report of the Russian naval commander will minimize the incident. Naturally Admiral Rojest vensky will gloss over the blunder as much as possible, even though it may not have been committed under his own orders The Admiralty, moreover, is in the habit of upholding its officers, whether right or wrong, and it is hardly believed that strictly truthful reports of the affair, even if forwarded by the Russian commander, will reach the Foreign Office on account of the intestine feud which threatens to rend the Russian Government in twain. Rather than admit the damaging truth that those on the Russian fleet responsible for the outrage were panic stricken or drunk, the Admiralty, it is believed in some quarters, day received charges against F. Schaettler may risk war with England, leaving the

No credit is given by the State Department to the persistent expressions in the the British demands, which were duly press that the North Sea incident was deliberately conceived and executed for the purpose of dragging England into the war, thus giving Russia an excuse to declare that it cannot be expected to fight the whole world at one time. It is pointed out that Russia, even acting under the peculiarly fatal impulses that have characterized her recent moves, would hardly be guilty of the incredible folly of placing her last naval force at the mercy of the overwhelming fleets of Great Britain. If Russia had cared to embroil Great Britain she could have done so on several favorable occasions during the past six months The conclusion reached here and still held. despite the mystifying reports from abroad. is that the North Sea fishermen were fired upon in a moment of panic or sheer recklessness, inspired either by fear of the Japanese or by excessive indulgence in drink by the officers and men.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN LONDON, Oct. 27.-The Copenhagen correspondent of the Morning Post says that the schooner Guyane, from Liverpool, has arrived at Aalborg. She reports that she passed the Russian Baltic fleet in the North Sea going southward at full speed in two divisions. The Guyane, three hours later, in latitude 55° 25' north, longitude 85° 35' east, saw, two miles away, a twofunnelled steamer showing signals of distress. The Guyane bore down toward the steamer, which meanwhile fired two signal guns. Before the Guyane reached her she disappeared, and there seems to be no doubt that she sank.

The correspondent adds that the report is interesting in view of the rumors that the Russians did not confine their attention to the trawlers, but also sank a steamer The position given by the Guyane of the vessel that disappeared and the position of the fleet at the time specified agree with each other.

STOLEN TRANSFER CRUSADE. Queer "Point of Law" Secures Discharge of Boy Accused of Illegal Sale. Bernhart Silverton, 15 years old, of 165 Avenue C, was accused yesterday in the Children's Court of unlawfully selling trolley transfers. Assistant Inspector Webster of the Metropolitan Traction Company testified that he bought a transfer from the boy yesterday morning at Broadway and Astor place for 2 cents, whereupon he had a policeman arrest him. Counsellor Alexander Lehman, who appeared for Silverton, raised the point that as an inspector of the street car company Webster was legally entitled to the transfer and that the boy had, therefore, committed no offence, especially as Webster did not obtain the ticket with the intention of using it.

Justice Olmsted went into the legal point deeply and then acquitted the prisoner. The law point was well taken, he said. Chief Inspector Parker said that it would be almost impossible to obtain convicwould be almost impossible to obtain convic-tions in such cases if this ruling held good.
